

Amit Bernstein, PhD, is a Professor of Psychology at the University of Haifa, where he is the Director of the Observing Minds Lab and the Moments of Refuge Project. Amit's basic science research has focused on the nature of attention in mental life and health, and in turn, the curative mechanisms of mindfulness training. His group's more applied research is focused on how mindfulness training may be used to promote resilience and recovery among refugees and asylum seekers struggling with trauma, loss and stress. Learn more: www.momentsofrefuge.com